Biographical data

Antonia Chandrasegaran is Associate Professor at the National Institute of Education, Singapore, where she teaches academic writing and composition research.

Phil Glenwright has taught at schools and Universities in England, Germany and Hong Kong and has published in reputable journals such as Assessing Writing, Education and Society, and the Journal of Language, Identity and Education. Topics include Discourse, Curriculum Reform, Assessment and Language Teaching. His recently authored book ‘The Hong Kong Culture of Learning’ appeared in 2010. He is currently bringing out a new book on TEFL and writing a research-based chapter for an edited book on intercultural learning. He is a Senior Teaching Fellow at the Hong Kong Institute of Education. Cricket is his main love.

Yongyan Li teaches at the Faculty of Education of the University of Hong Kong. Her research interests focus on EAL (English as an Additional Language) academics writing for publication and ESL (English as a Second Language) students writing in disciplines.

Supakorn Phoocharoensil holds his PhD in English as an international language (Chulalongkorn University). He has been teaching various undergraduate and graduate English courses at Language Institute of Thammasat University, Thailand. His research interests include second language acquisition, interlanguage syntax and pragmatics, and vocabulary learning.

Andrew Sewell teaches English phonetics and phonology in the Department of English at Lingnan University. His research interests include World Englishes, English as a Lingua Franca and the acquisition of L2 phonology, as well as the teaching and learning of English pronunciation. He has published in a number of journals, including English Today, English World-wide and World Englishes. He has experience of language teaching, teacher training, materials design and testing in several Asian countries.

Chi Cheung Ruby Yang is a PhD candidate at Lancaster University, UK. Her research interests include Language and Gender, Corpus Linguistics, Classroom Discourse Analysis and Second Language Learning and Teaching.